TECHNICAL_REALISM

- Authentic Tools: Unlike Hollywood tropes, the show features real-world tools like Kali Linux, Metasploit, John the Ripper, and Nmap.
- Command Line Interface: Characters use actual terminal commands rather than flashy, fake GUIs.
- Hardware Hacks: Depicts the use of Raspberry Pis for climate control hacks and "Rubber Ducky" USB drives for payload delivery.
- Accuracy: Writers consulted with cybersecurity experts to ensure every screen and keystroke was technically feasible.

VECTOR: SOCIAL_ENGINEERING

---

THE HUMAN EXPLOIT

The series consistently posits that the human element is the weakest link in any security chain. No firewall can stop a user from handing over their password if manipulated correctly.

METHODOLOGIES

Elliot and fsociety utilize phishing, pretexting (impersonating delivery personnel or IT support), and tailgating to bypass physical security measures that code cannot penetrate.

TARGET: E CORP

---

The Invisible Hand: E Corp ("Evil Corp") serves as a monolithic symbol of modern global capitalism, controlling 70% of the global consumer credit industry.

The 5/9 Hack: The central plot revolves around encrypting E Corp's data to erase all consumer debt. This act is framed not just as a crime, but as a necessary redistribution of power.

Debt Slavery: The show critiques how debt is used as a mechanism of control, keeping the population subservient to corporate interests.

DAEMON_PROCESS: MR. ROBOT

THE ARCHITECT

Mr. Robot is not a separate entity, but a dissociative identity created by Elliot to handle the trauma and aggression he cannot process alone. He represents the anarchy and rage required to execute fsociety's vision.
"Control is an illusion."
